NO EXTRA SESSION.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The President has decided not to call an extra session of Congress. In so doing he has chosen to accede to the requests and to listen to the advice of the business interests of the country rather than to those well-meaning but often mistaken men who can never convince themselves that the masses are not sufficiently intelligent to appreciate a political situation.

The August (Ga.) Constitutionalist pleasantly alludes to Senator Mahone as a Nihilist. Perhaps Mahone won this title by the thorough way in which he annihilated the bill.

The equilibrium of the global Senator from Illinois is so unstable that he rolls out of one party and into another without any appreciable effort, provocation or purpose.

Mrs. Garfield has found it impossible to attend to her family duties and to receive callers every evening; she has therefore determined to see people only two evenings in the week, Tuesday and Friday.

Mr. Moses Hopkins, brother of the late Mark Hopkins, has just given to a California academy an endowment of $50,000, the largest sum yet bestowed in this way by any one person in that State.

John Lewis, a once-famous dwarf, died in Watertown, Wis., a few days ago. He was 24 years old, 39 inches in height and when well weighed 10 pounds, but at the time of his death he weighed only 13 pounds.

The son of the late Lewis Clapp of Illinois has succeeded in breaking his father's will by which he bequeathed $150,000 for the establishment of an agricultural college, conditioned on the forty-sixth birthday of the son.

Capt. J. C. Kinney of the Hartford Courant, a gallant soldier, a quick-witted journalist and a first-class companion, is talked of as the next Governor of Hartford. He says that he is not an applicant for the position.

Congressman Young, of Tennessee, remarked recently in an interview with a Tribune reporter, that the South would remain solid against the Republican party "so long as that party puts men into the offices of the South who are the worst possible characters imaginable."

The Memphis Avalanche, a Democratic newspaper of independent proclivities, says, "this sweeping condemnation of Southern officials is wholly unwarranted by the facts," and names ten officials in Mr. Young's own district who it asserts would lose nothing by comparison with him "either morally, socially or politically."

This simply proves once more that there is no reason for the South's policy of perpetuation of Bourbon domination.

hush at the South. If the Democrats want to drive out from among them every man who has an honest and practical side in public life, they cannot do so more quickly or surely than by a course of barren obstruction. It is not to take many days to disorganize that, mainly completely, and to take over to the Republican side the most capable and practical Democrats in Congress, if any unreasonable attempt should be made to block legislation, or to force the passage of dangerous or unjust measures.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

There is less scepticism about the right of Garfield's backbone than there was. It is stated that the Southern institution to which Col. Thomas A. Scott has given the sum of $50,000 is the Washington and Lee University.
